

Carol Turley

We've lived in Berry Hill since 2002 and it's lovely to be able to walk straight into the woods from home.

Since I retired from teaching, I have developed a more active role at Christchurch, training first to be a pastoral assistant and more recently to be a worship leader.

I met my Forester husband David when we were at teacher training college in Bath. We're both now enjoying the variety of activities that retirement brings, including singing in local choirs and spending time with our family.

The Christian principle to love my neighbour is an important part of my faith.

My roles in Church allow me to be part of a team that provides practical support in our local community and I really enjoy helping to lead the wide variety of worship styles we offer in our Benefice. It's great to be a part of such a caring community.
